"Selling the war to labor was our job while the fighting was on. Selling the Government's reconstruction program to the business man and the working man is our task now that the enemy has been beaten."

Thus Roger W. Babson, chief of the Information and Education Service of the Department of Labor, sums up the work of his bureau for the last eight months.

"How well the drive was put over may be seen in the loyalty of labor to the men in the trenches during hostilities, and in the response of industry and labor alike to the appeal for co-operation in getting back to a peace basis.

"Nowadays, we have to guard against resting on our oars. We've won the war, yes, but that's only the beginning. The fruits of victory would rot on the ground if we failed to gather them in. "Therefore, we must work harder han ever. We must shift from making munitions and give our energy to putting the nation on a firm, safe basis of prosperity. To do this, emloyers and workers must get together. Each must make concessions for the good of the whole people.

"This is the message of the department for the period of readjustment. We are doing our best to let the soldier know that the country wants to help him back to civilian life in the most practical way. Not to give him charity, but to give him the best job possible. We want the man who held the lines at home to know that we seek the most profitable place for him in the new era. He has done his bit, and he is entitled to the best living he can get.

"The business man has to be encouraged, too. He must understand that nothing is to be gained by holding back. This is the time for action There is no prospect of very much cheaper labor or materials in the near future. So we are urging re-..Six-room semi-detached frame; cellar, near future. So we are urging relarge lot, chicken house, shed, etc. In fine sumption now of industrial activity on a larger scale than ever before 'Build, manufacture, produce!'
